CATHOLIC SYNOD.

THE SECOND DIOCESAN MEETING TO CLOSE TO-DAY.

The Laws and Decrees of the Baltimor Council Adapted to the Diocese of Richmond, &c.

A very large body of laws, known as "canon law," governs the Catho-lic Church. These laws are adapted to the needs of various countries in the national or plenary councils of the respective countries; still again, a more cal coloring is given to the same in provincial councils, which are made up of an archbishop and the few bishops known as his suffragens. Finally, in every diocese of the Church, which is the State or part of a country governed by a bishop, the various laws, national or plenary additions, and provincial al-terations are considered and acted upon by the clergy of that State or section of country under the guidance of their bishop. It is the last which terminates its sessions at St. Peter's Cathedral this merning. For the second time, after an interval of thirty years, the Roman Catholic clergy of Virginia are gathered in this city in Synod. The laws made in higher ecclesiastical assemblies could not be altered in the Synod, which. moreover, derived its strength an binding power from the presiding off-cer—the Right Rev. Bishop Keane.

OBJECT OF THIS SESSION. In the present Synod the great object was not only to adapt the decrees and laws of the recent Plenary Council of Baltimore to the wants and the good of the Diocese of Richmond, but also to revise in the fullest way the whole body of laws governing the clergy of the State. It is commendable to the wisdom and foresight of the clergy of the First Richmond that their work lasted thirty years without let or hindrance or substantial change.

THE NINE CHAPTERS. divided into nine chapters. In the first the decrees of the late Plenary Council, held in Raltimore in 1886. held in Baltimore in 1885, are formally accepted and adhered to. The second chapter regards the Diocese of Richmond. It names the various officials who helped the Bishop in his work. Six priests—one half selected by the Bishop, the other half voted for by the priests-are known as consulters, who form the Bishop's Senate and enjoy a deliberative vote in the election of a new bishop. Three other clergymen form a commission, whose duty it is to examine candidates for the position of teachers in Catholic schools. Affiliated to this is another commission, who, four in number, examine the various schools of the diocese. Minor officials are named; likewise the duties of the rectors of the churches; and special words of commendation of the

In the next the duties of the clergy are pointed out. Their intercourse with one another; the manner in which strangers who are priests are to be received in regard to church services and Divine worship; the duty of living in their parishes; the strict obligation of preaching; the spirit that should ani-mate preachers of Christ's Word; the need of assiduous study, are-one and all-points seriously inculcated. In connection with study the clergy are ad monished of the two yearly meetings where papers on philosophic, doctrina and scriptural subjects are read. Th is the life, and he is wise who remembers it. Est in Marco of hast year (1884) 1000-tracted based poisson, and, being in Savan, rath, it., at the time, I went into the nospinals, it., at the time, I went into the nospinals to the relation of their church accounts, of their church lail there for treatment. I suffered very records, are the closing matter of this their church accounts, of their church records, are the closing matter of this > for infirm and aged priests-a kind of beneficial society.

> In the fourth chapter the Divine worship and its sacred surroundings are dealt with most fully. The words of the Plenary Council forbidding Cathoprobating its sale by them at all, have a prominent place. The clergy are admonished to watch over such of their flocks who are engaged in this wretched business. Afternaming the various festal days of the Holy Church, the chapter ends by providing for prayers and sacrifices for the deceased bishops and clergy. In the fifth chapter the means of sanctification form a weighty subject of consideration. The Roman ritual, the approved method of administering the sacraments, and the use of the Latin tongue, which. no matter how much other languages may change, always retains the same meaning for its words, are prescribed. The sacraments of baptism, confirmstion, Holy Eucharist, the mass, confession, the last anointing, and marriage are respectively disposed of-bow they should be administered; how they who are about to receive them, specially the young, should be prepared, and how the faithful should be strenuously and faithfully instructed in regard these means of receiving into their souls the precious blood of Jesus Christ. In regard to marriages, those between Catholics and Protestants, known as "mixed," are not to be encouraged, but as far as possible prevented, and only to be granted where the requisite promises of non-interference with the Catholic party in regard to religion, and of the baptizing and bringing up of the offspring as Catholics are given. The 6th chapter treats of the education of youth. Catholic schools must be established wherever possible, together with Sunday schools. The catechisms compiled by command of the Plenary Council of Baltimore are to be used in all Catholic schools. The seventh chapter is devoted to the work in the vineyard. The Master's blessed example is held up before the clergy, who are to imitate him. The many dangers of the faithful, occasioned by dangerous surroundings, are pointed out. As an antidote to secret societies, Catholic societies and clubs are to be encouraged. Temperance societies are courseed. The religious confraternities and sodalities of the Holy Nick Slaughter (colored), Church are particularly to be ad-vanced, while for the good of faithful, at a regular time, mission services are to be held in the churches. The eighth chapter treats of Christian burial, and the danger of being deprived of it is the punishment to which negligent Catholics expose themselves. The pinth and last chapter treats of the Church temporalities. All ecclesisstical property must be in the Bishop's name. The various collections

Fined $10 and costs. for the orphans, the colored missions, &c., are all arranged. Lastly, it is enjoined upon every paster to pick out two gentlemen of his parish who are of tried virtue, sterling honesty, and tinued until the 28th instant. sound business qualities, who will be called, the Synod's officials were arnounced, and the prescribed decrees for The profession of faith of Pius IV. the street. Security required for six months in the sum of $200. opening the Synod read.

was read by the Vicar-General in the name of all, and bishop and priests swore adhesion to it on the Holy Evangel. Afterwards the clergy repaired to the basement, where they were di-vided into five committees; they took up the various questions.

After dinner this committee work was resumed and kept up till nearly 5 P. M., when a report of progress was made to the Bishop, who then said the last word, and the decrees received their final shape. Afterwards the Bishop gave his clergy a conference.

TO CLOSE TO-DAY. Thursday morning, after the mass for the dead, the decrees which were settled on the previous evening were officially promulgated. The committee work was again resumed and finished during the evening. Again the Bishop presided at the meeting and gave the final shape to the decrees, which will be promulgated after the solemn mass of this morning, when the Synod will be officially closed.

SEVERE STABBING APPRAYS. There is a good deal of excitement at Troy, Montgomery county, growing out of serious stabbing affrays there. In the past few days there have been four in that ordinarily peaceable community. A man named Morris fatally stabbed John Saunders Tuesday. Sunday two brothers named Lammond fought-one disembowelled the other with a knife. The deaths of the latter. as well as Saunders, are expected. A

It is now an assured fact that a railwill be constructed from its terminus to this country. DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION. It has been decided that the State Convention will assemble here next Wednesday at noon at Metropolitan Hall, in which so many great conventions have met. Although the Convention is only to nominate justices of the Supreme Court, yet the attendance will probably be larger than is generally believed. Considerable interest is felt in the selection of judges. The Convention will probably take some decided action concerning the Independents, and will do all possible to secure unity among the Democrats. Prohibition, labor, and county government all enter into politics this year.

Colonel Gressman Green, of the Third district, who was defeated for renomination, publishes quite a bitter and very vigorous card to his constituents. He characterizes the proceedings of some of the delegates in the Convention as irregular, to say the least, and is cholers. Also, that sheep are dying equally plain in speaking of the methods from a disease known as "scab."

used by another also unsuccessful candidate in his efforts to secure the nomination. Colonel Green gives high praise to Major Clammy, his successful com-petitor, and asks for him the hearty and united support of every Democratin the district.

RAD TOBACCO CROP.

Not a Half-Crop in Portions of North Carolina-Henderson Items. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.

HENDERSON, N. C., August 19th. improvement of upland corn and forage crops, but to the very serious detriment of the tobacco. Some of the very late tobacco is looking green, but, like the forward, will hasten in to fire up and be prematurely cut. I have been largely over Vance, Granville, and Warren counties, and the prospects are certainly bad as a general thing. Oc-casionally I saw a good-looking field, but even these would not bear close inspection. The president of our Tobacco Exchange and largest buyer on our market has just returned from a trip through the southern part of Vance and the Beaver-Dam and Tally-He sections, in Granville, and he says that he was sadly disappointed in the crop; that, knowing the people and the land, he was not prepared to see such a crop; that it cannot be more than half a crop, to say nothing of its quality. The market here is still firm, Safurday by shooting himself through the heart. It was at first thought that under good receipts.

Transactions in real estate are still made here, while the building boom is unabated—no doubt increased by the rise in tobacco, coupled with the fact that our dealers hold last stocks. Messrs. G. W. Smith & Co., of Lynchburg. Va., have bought a very desirable lot on Chestnut street and contracted for a large three-story leaf-tobacco factory to be built thereon.

Our town is coming into importance as a point for small fruits. Grape-men have shipped during this season a little over twenty tons, which were sold at fine prices. The strawberry and pear crops are very good this year, but the peach crop is a failure.

We had a nice treat last week in two lectures in the Presbyterian church by Rev. John W. Davis, D. D., a reurned missionary from China. His lectures were both interesting and instructive. He will return to his work in China in October. He is a native of Salisbury, in this State, and, though only thirty-seven years old, has spent twelve years in China and translated into their language the four Gospels, the Acts of the Apostles, and the Pealms.

CUTTING'S SENTENCE

Public Service-Personal, &c.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.] WASHINGTON, August 19.—The special news printed in a New York paper to-day from Mexico is discussed hereabout as follows: The Inferior Court has pronounced sentence against Cutting. An appeal to the Supreme That tribunal will in a day or two sus-tain the decision of the lower court. According to the Mexican Constitution the Federal power has then an opportunity for display. The sentence will go into operation as soon as the decision of the higher tribunal of the State has

Cutting will then go to prison. HE WILL BE PARDONED. After undergoing the sentence for a day or two, President Diaz will pardon him. The purpose is to satisfy the local prejudice and what is termed down there "the national honor." There is no intention to go further and insist upon the full execution of the sentence. This view of the matter has been entertained here by many who been entertained here by many who enjoy the confidence of the State Department. It is a common-sense view. THE LABOR BUREAU has decided to use the appropriation made at the late session, the amount of which is $92,000, in two prime objects— investigation of the various strikes, and study of the convict system in the different States. It is the purpose to make an elaborate report and have it ready— before Congress meets—at the time when the regular Department reports are sub-mitted. Heretofore the labor report has been irregular in its time or issue. The Bureau is fully alive to the importance of the subjects they have taken in hand, and the preparation is, in a large measure, complete as to one of them. For several months the newspaper files of the Congressional Library bave been examined, and full notes of all facts made out by a corps of competent clerks. SHOULD THEY REMAIN. The view adopted in this column this morning that too many experienced men are leaving the halls of Congress is contested by an old and intelligent employee. He says that the average member gains nothing for himself, and certainly nothing for his constituents by staying here longer than two terms. By the way, the types made me say Mr. Wise had been here only two years.] His opinion is that the member who knows he can be easily reelected becomes very careless, and, in some instances, personally demoralized. He neglects public for private business or pleasures. The people do not know in every case how matters stand. They are often deceived. But if the representative feels that he is to have only a short term in office he becomes very assiduous and careful about all matters concerning his district or the general welfare. This gentleman thinks that if may be two sides to the question, but the rule would not work well if adopted. PERSONAL AND POSTAL NOTES. Mr. W. H. Jones, of Richmond, is here. Among other arrivals are Mrs. and Miss Downey, of Virginia. City post-office, Alleghany N. C. has been discontinued. The mail
